Gamble, now on exhibition at the National Academy of Design, as being made up of "old precedents and recipes," a sword. bust of Washington, &c. Gov. Gamble was elected successfully used to avert such result, and he was chosen Governor of the State in that hour of bitter trial. His known truth and manly frankness made all men look to his first utterance as Governor, as a true index of his future course, and in his first speech he made this declaration: "While I am Governor, the sword of this State shall ever be found do cading the old."

State shall ever be found do cading the old. sword of this State shall ever be found de ending the old flor, the Union, the Constitution and the home that Washington gave us." To us of Missouri who made our declaration of principles with our lives in our ands these words were more than mere rhetoric, and to our people, for whom this picture is painted the tion of the noble old man are something more than old precedents and recipes." I am one who fully be lieves in the divinity of the "vox populi" and that the press is its high priest. I stand before it with the same faith that Job had in his God, but believe that some of its priests are, as were his friends, when he said to "Ye are false physicians, forgers of lies, I will trust in Him though he slev me, but I will maintain mine own ways before Him.
